

From: fleur
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 12:15pm
Subject: Microsoft security

We are regularly assured that our internet security is sound, but we are equally regularly warned that our pc's are subjected to newer threats of invasion from unwanted sources which, we are told, are even dangerous. The need for regular assurances of security is itself indicative that the opposite might equally be true.
Is Microsoft scareing us into being its minions. Let's have more competitionafter the spirit of true capitalistic principles. Hey?